Statement on Human Rights

INTRODUCTION

At IFD, we are guided and sustained by Our Credo, a set of core principles that serve as a moral compass for how we conduct business. These principles outline our obligations to our customers, our employees, our communities around the world, and our investors; they also unite our employees with a common value that the fundamental rights and dignity of all people must be respected.

While it is the duty of governments to protect the rights of their citizens, we recognize that businesses also have a critical role to play. As a global healthcare company, IFD is committed to respecting human rights in our own operations and complying with the laws of the countries in which we do business. Moreover, we believe we have an opportunity to positively impact the protection of human rights within our sphere of influence. To this end, along with our trade organization and industry alliance partners, we encourage and support our suppliers and other business partners in their efforts to act in accordance with internationally recognized human rights standards.

Our commitment is guided by the principles set forth in laws of the United States governing human rights, as well as in the following international documents:

- Universal Declaration of Human Rights
- International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights
- International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights
- International Labor Organization's (ILO's) Declaration on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work
- Guidelines for Multinational Enterprises of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD)
- United Nations (UN) Guiding Principles on Business and Human Rights

APPROACH

rights due diligence is a continuous process, and we have policies, processes, training and monitoring systems in place in furtherance of this commitment.

In Our Operations

We expect each IFD employee to act lawfully toward other employees, colleagues, business partners and those in local communities as outlined in our Code of Conduct and other related enterprise-wide policies. We ensure protection of IFD employee rights and entitlements through policies and procedures established by the global Human Resources, Procurement and Law Department functions. All new and current employees are required to complete annual Code of Conduct trainings, which cover human rights topics. Employees with roles and responsibilities relevant to aspects of human rights in our operations or in the supply base receive general awareness trainings on human rights.

In the Supply Base

We expect our business partners—including suppliers and customers—to share our commitment to respect human rights. All suppliers must comply with our Responsibility Standards for Suppliers (the Standards), which set forth our requirements around business practices. Processes are in place to identify and manage health, safety and environmental risks associated with our supply base. We are also establishing due diligence processes to assess and monitor compliance of our suppliers with labor, employment and business ethics provisions of the Standards.

In the Community

As an employer and a corporate citizen, we are aware of our role in the communities in which we operate. Our belief in respecting human rights of world and local communities is embodied in Our Credo: “We are responsible to the communities in which we live and work and to the world community as well. We must be good citizens – support good works and charities...”.

We respect the rights of local communities and those who live and work there consistent with international human rights standards. We continuously monitor and address the environmental impacts of our business operations on our neighbors and strive to create positive impacts on adjacent communities through local engagement and charitable programs.
